The University of Iowa College of Nursing invites applications for the position of Associate Dean for Research and Scholarship. The Associate Dean is responsible for providing visionary administrative leadership in advancing the collegiate research and scholarly activities in a dynamic and research intensive college and university. The primary responsibility is to facilitate faculty research and scholarship efforts, with particular emphasis on expanding the extramural funding base and the development of faculty. The role encompasses administration of collegiate research resources, enhancing the research environment within the college, facilitation of faculty and graduate student research and scholarship, mentorship of faculty, and articulation with university and external agencies. The Associate Dean for Research and Scholarship reports to the Dean of the College of Nursing and is a member of the executive leadership team. This is a full-time, fiscal (twelve-month) tenured professor faculty position with a distribution of effort across administration (50%), teaching and research.

The UI College of Nursing has a long-standing tradition of producing nurse leaders for practice, education and research. The college received national recognition by U.S. News & World Report, ranking seven of its graduate programs among the best in the nation (in comparison to all public and private schools). At Iowa, we are committed to preparing future nurse leaders with the courage, creativity, and passion to use their skills and knowledge to improve the health of individuals and communities.

Iowa City is consistently voted one of the best places to live in the country. It is where small town hospitality meets big city amenities, where friendly meets adventurous. It’s a place where everyone’s welcome.
